GLOBAL PARTNERS CORNER

There was joy in Golikro, Cote d'Ivoire last month like Christmas morning as the "Rototiller on Steroids" along with other equipment finally arrived at Global Partner Steppin' Out Missions Bible Training Center. FBC sent funds pre-Covid for these long needed tools to help the Center become self-sufficient in providing food for students training there. Over the years, FBC has also sent funds to help provide a well and storage tanks providing clean water for the school/village there with storage tanks facilitating irrigation for crops including the cassava tuber, the main staple in the West African diet. Also known as manioc, it is a woody shrub, drought resistant, and it's edible starchy tuberous root is a major source of carbohydrate. Predominantly consumed in boiled form, it is also processed to extract cassava starch called tapioca, which is used for food, animal feed, and industrial purposes. For story & pics: Click Here
